WORLD GATHERS AT KING'S BIER

Funeral Ceremonies of Edward VII. Attended by Representatives of All Nations.

THOUSANDS GAZE ON COFFIN

For Three Days Subjects of the Late Monarch View Remains Lying in State-Final Observances at Royal Palace of Windsor.

London, Eng.-With all the pomp and formal observances befitting the obsequies of the ruler of a great nation, King Edward's funeral pageant on May 20 is classed as the most imposing ceremonial in the history of Great Britain's capital.

The streets through which the pro cession passed were lined with upward of 30,000 picked troops of the British army, and among the mourners were the rulers of every country in Europe, or their representatives. In this assembly ex-President Roosevelt rode as the special envoy of the United States. every honor being accorded America's distinguished representative.

At a conservative estimate 700,000 persons passed through Westminster hall to look upon the coffir of the king lying in state. Barriers were built, by means of which the people were ushered through in four lines at the rate of 18,000 an hour. The body of the late king was not exposed to view. The mourners saw only the coffin. with the official regalia and heaps of Queen Mother Chose Hymns.

The hymns sung at the service at Windsor were all of the queen mother's choice. They were "My God, My Father, While I Stray," "Now the Laborer's Task Is O'er," and "I Heard a Voice From Heaven."

the catafalque stood. The public was admitted until ten o'clock at night. The catafalque occupied the spot on which Gladstone's catafalque stood.

The Court at Windsor. The court removed to Windsor the day before the funeral. The arch-bishop of Canterbury, assisted by Canon Wilberforce, conducted a short service at Westminster hall on the arrival of the body on May 17. The members of both houses of parliament attended this service.

Neither M. Loubet, M. Delcasse nor M. Clemenceau formed part of the French mission to attend the funeral of King Edward. Premier Briand intended to go, but also gave up the idea, owing to the fact that Emperor William was there. Under these circumstances the mission was purely formal. It consisted of M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs; General Dalstein, military governor of Paris; Admiral Marquis and an attache rep resenting President Fallieres.

Roosevelt Among the Monarchs.

Ex-President Roosevelt, who was named as special envoy of the United States to attend the funeral of King Edward, was presented to King George soon after his arrival in London. Mr. Roosevelt occupied a place with the visiting monarchs in the funeral procession and attended the burial at Jackies Drew Carriage.

King George being so closely identified with the navy, the naval contingents took a prominent part in the ceremonies. Bluejackets drew the gun carriage to Windsor, as they did the carriage which bore the body of Victoria, although on that occasion they did so because the horses became restive.

Soldiers from the king's company, grenadier guards, kept sentry watch over the body in the throneroom at Buckingham palace. They were relieved each hour. With simple ceremony some one of the visiting royalties entered the room every now and then, and the widowed queen went there frequently.

Body in Magnificent Tomb.

The body of King Edward lies with that of his immediate ancestors in the magnificent mausoleum at Frogmore, in the Home park of Windsor castle. In this structure, erected by Queen Victoria at a cost of $1,000,000, Prince Albert Edward, father of the late attempts because it was known that every one under surveilance would be deported from England if any trouble were caused on this occasion, and it was not likely that the persons of the anarchist type would give up voluntarily their safest refuge in Europe.

The procession to Westminster hall May 17 for the lying in state was almost on as great a scale as the funeral procession. The cortege included King George and all the foreign sovereigns on horseback, and the queen mother and the royal ladies in car-

When the funeral procession started every street car in London came to a standstill for a quarter of an hour. All the public houses in London were closed while the procession was pass-

No Distinction Shown.

There was no distinction as to person nor were there any ticket privileges for the lying in state in Westminster hall. All had to take their turn in line.

At St. George's chapel, at Windsor, from whence the body was carried to its final resting place the carved stalls were removed in order to give place to timber seating. Otherwise not a tenth of those entitled to attend would have been able to enter. The chapel was draped with violet hang-

Violet was the predominant tone of all the funeral drapings and public decorations, it being well known that King Edward greatly disliked the gloom given by black draperles.

The service held in Westminster abbey did not form any part of the royal funeral. It was a memorial service held especially for those members of the house of lords and house of commons, who were unable to go king, was laid to rest in 1861. In the same year Queen Victoria's mother, the duchess of Kent, was buried in an elaborate tomb in the grounds near by. In 1901 Queen Victoria herself was buried in the mausoleum beside her husband.

The structure is probably one of the most elaborate of the kind in existence. It was planned in minute detail by Queen Victoria as a memorial to the prince consort. The general public is not admitted to the chamber where lie the royal bodies in two immense sarcophagi, but the spot is a great magnet for tourists, dozena of whom inspect the marble mausoleum daily.

King George Dislikes His Office. The new monarch is good intentioned and amiable and is not lacking in common sense, native ability, whereto have been added all the advantages of fine training, but his tastes are domestic and he dislikes the publicity and conspicuousness of his new prerogatives. He would be happy to live the life of a country squire, and already it is a common saying that Queen Mary will exercise all the social powers which appertain to the throne and will have a strong influence as well in all affairs of state. This is unfair exaggeration, but the new court will be markedly different from that of Edward. Several conspicuous figures will disappear, and the court of King George will bear a close resemblance to that of Queen Victoria.

Now that King Edward is gone it is possible to give some hint of the paradoxical effect of his death. His influence, as all the world knows, was more powerfully for peace than that of any man of modern times, yet curiously enough his death removes one cause of friction between England and

SMYDER HELD FOR WHIPPING

Mabel Ferber and Marie Elson Tell in Court About Flogging Received With Garden Hose.

Berlin Heights, O .-- C. V. Snyder, superintendent of the schools of this village, was bound over to court by Justice of the Peace Willinger, with bail at $100, on the charge of whipping Marie Elson, 16, daughter of a member of the school board, and Mabel Ferber, 15, daughter of the township clerk, with a piece of garden hose.

Miss Elson and Miss Ferber said they were much humiliated by the whipping, which was so severe that it was five or six days before the marks disappeared. They said that Professor Snyder gave Ruby Maillie, daughter of a rich quarryman, permission to leave the school grounds during school hours, but refused to let them go. They obtained permission from the principal and went. When they returned Professor Snyder then called them into the school library, where he whipped them. The hose was brought into court. It was about two feet long.

JUDGE GIVES DIVORCE TALK

Refuses to Put "Soft Pedal" on Wrongdoings or Whitewash Unclean Characters.

Cleveland, O .- Judge Kennedy has granted a divorce to Lillian C. Barrett of this city on the ground of extreme cruelty of her husband, Thomas E. Barrett, former city employe. Mrs. Barrett's attorney wanted the decree entered on the ground of gross neglect of duty, but Kennedy declined to allow it, and gave his reasons in a vigorous statement from the bench.

"I decline to allow such men to have the soft pedal put on their wrongdoings," said Kennedy. "It is wrong to turn them out upon society with a bill of health that makes them look like men of clean characa woman has been wrong as well." The proof submitted in the Barrett case showed that Barrett had whipped his wife as though she had been a child when she did not please Willing to Pay for Rammer. When the British square at the bat tle of Abu Klea, in the Nubian des ert, was penetrated by the dervishes one of them attempted to spear a gun ner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The Briton brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split on the man's hard skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason, and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off with: "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to hear no more of the case.'

"Yaller." Some soaps are so yellow that no word describes them so well as the homely old expression "yaller."
